Prospectus for 1874,

Seventh Year.

The Aldine,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

Not for Sale in Book or News Stores

THE ALDINE while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

To fully realize the wonderful work which THE ALDINE is doing for the cause of art culture in America, it is only necessary to consider the cost to the people of any other decent representations of the productions of great painters.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influence of true art.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thomas Moran and J. D. Woodward.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The difference in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates and are in size (12x16) and appearance exact facsimiles of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial, over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 20th, 1873.

MESSRS. JAMES SUTTON & Co.

Gentlemen,—I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful representations by mechanical process of the original paintings.

Very respectfully,
(Signed,) THOS. MORAN.

These chromos are in every sense American. They are by an original American process, with material of American manufacture, from designs of American scenery by an American painter, and presented to subscribers to the first successful American Art Journal. If no better because of all this, they will certainly possess an interest no foreign production can inspire, and neither are they any the worse if by reason of peculiar facilities of production they cost the publishers only a trifle, while equal in every respect to other chromos that are sold singly for double the subscription price of THE ALDINE. Persons of taste will prize these pictures for themselves—not for the price they did or did not cost, and will appreciate the enterprise that renders their distribution possible.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 cents extra, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtained only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

RHEUMATISM

of Chronic and Acute Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lumbago Sciatica, Kidney, and Nervous Diseases, after years of suffering, by taking Dr. Fitler's Vegetable Rheumatic Syrup—the scientific discovery of J. P. Fitler, M. D., a regular graduate physician, with whom we are personally acquainted, who has for 39 years treated these diseases exclusively with astonishing results. We believe it our christian duty, after deliberation, to conscientiously request sufferers to use it, especially persons in moderate circumstances who cannot afford to waste money and time on worthless mixtures. As clergymen we seriously feel the deep responsibility resting on us in publicly endorsing this medicine. But our knowledge and experience of its remarkable merit fully justifies our action. Yours truly, &c., Rev. C. H. Ewing, Media, Penn'a, suffered sixteen years, became hopeless. Rev. Thomas Murphy, D. D., Frankford, Philadelphia. Rev. J. B. Davis, Hightstown, New Jersey. Rev. J. S. Buchanan, Clarence, Iowa. Rev. G. G. Smith, Pittsford, New York. Rev. Joseph Beggs, Falls Church, Philadelphia. Other testimonials from Senators, Governors, Judges, Congressmen, Physicians, &c., forwarded gratis with pamphlet explaining these diseases. One thousand dollars will be presented to any medicine for same diseases showing equal merit under test, or that can produce one-fourth as many living cures. Any person sending by letter description of affliction will receive without charge (if considered curable) a legally signed guarantee, naming the exact number of bottles warranted to cure, agreeing to refund amount paid in case of its failure to cure. Price per bottle, $1.25; can be bought as used. Afflicted invited to write for medical advice on above diseases only. No charge for reply, which will contain much valuable information acquired by a lifetime practice. No compulsion to buy medicine. Address Dr. Fitler, Philadelphia. Sawin & Teague of Caribou, are making considerable birch timber this season, which is to be hauled into the Aroostook at Caribou.

Rev. James Varney of Vassalboro, who was injured while working on his farm, with a team, is in a very critical condition.

A. J. Hodsdon of Turner Village, while hunting partridges along the Twenty-mile river, shot a fine otter, the pelt of which he sold for nine dollars.

Sunday and Monday the river at the "Narrows," at Biddeford, was frozen over. Tuesday morning the ice prevented passing between Cow Island and the Biddeford side of the river.

Horace Thompson of Saco, was severely injured at the Kennebunk station of the Eastern railroad, Monday. He slipped under the train, and his skull was fractured. Hopes are entertained of his recovery.

James Doyle of Caribou, has contracted for ton millions of lumber to be hauled this season, which will require the labor of about 100 horses and 200 men.

Hagar Bros' at Richmond, are still at work in their shoe factory, and will not shut down at all. They received an order from one man a few days since, which they cannot fill before January.

The class of '75, of Bates College, have chosen A. S. Whitehouse and F. H. Smith as editors, and J. H. Hutchins as manager, of the Bates Student for the ensuing year.

The panic has already reached the derricks on the Granite Works of Jay, which have fallen strangely of late, slightly injuring Purington Tracy and Mitchell, and others narrowly escaped serious injury.

A son of Abraham Whitcomb of Waterford aged about fourteen, while out gunning a few days since, was, it is feared fatally injured by the bursting of his gun. One of his eyes was completely blown out.

Preparations for ship-building are active in all the sea coast towns in Maine where such work is usually done. Next year will present as much or more activity in this branch of business than the present season.

The Machias Union says the hay crop of '73 was never equalled in Washington county, quantity and quality considered. There is surplus in this crop. The potato crop though not large is of excellent quality, and the maud prospect fair.

The Hallowell Manufacturing Company have decided to continue to run their mill in Hallowell on full time, but have been compelled to reduce the wages of the employes about 20 per cent. in order to warrant a continuance of manufacturing operations.

The Kennebec Log Company are gathering their timber at Phipsburg, which came down there in the recent freshets. Although some may have gone to see they will secure nearly 25,000 sticks, but the indications are that they will not reach the company's boom at Swan Island before the river closes with ice.

The Press says that the case of the State vs. Carrie M. Waite, on charge of bigamy, did not come to a trial in the Portland Court, Wednesday morning, having been postponed on account of the ill health of the respondent who is quite ill. The public interest in this peculiar case remains unabated, and much curiosity is felt as to its issue.

Miller & Randall have 100 vats in their tannery in Auburn, and buy from 10,000 to 12,000 hides per year—nearly all from the slaughter house of that vicinity. They also buy from 3000 to 5000 calf skins per year—They find hemlock bark plenty at $8 per cord.

There is a stringency in the money market in Bath, but—says the Bath Times—as yet merchants and manufacturers keep on in the even tenor of their way. There has been no noticeable lessening of the number of laborers employed, and no reduction of time, no suspension and no failures.

In Lewiston the improvement in business is already quite marked. Several of the manufacturing corporations of that city paid off on Saturday, a day in advance of the regular pay day. The Lewiston Journal says of this fact: "That's a good shot to fling into the faces of the croakers. Over $100,000 in loose change is set afloat in this community this week by our manufacturers. We are quite glad just at present that this is a world of change."

Preparations for lumbering operations on the Kennebec are under way, but the business will not be carried on so extensively as it was a year ago. Some firms will not send a team into the logging swamp, while other parties will considerably curtail their operations the coming winter. Last winter the total cut of logs in the State was, as is estimated, rising 440,000,000, which, with the old logs on hand, made a total of nearly 600,000,000 logs on hand last spring.

JOHN H. LINDA, - - PROPRIETOR.

FRIDAY, NOV. 21, 1873.

OUR IRON-CLADS.

It is most honorable to the gallant officers of our Navy and gratifying to the public, to find that notwithstanding the constant refusal of Congress to make adequate provision for strengthening that branch of the service, they are eager to make the best use of the means at their command and confident that American prowess will counterbalance heavy odds in material. Since the order for preparation was issued the utmost alacrity has been displayed in every department, in putting our naval forts in readiness for any emergency; and everywhere in the service is exhibited the same unblenching faith which in the late war successfully pitted Yankee gun-boats against the iron-clads, fortifications and torpedoes of the enemy.

Washington despatches inform us that among the prominent Naval officers who have been questioned as to the comparative strength of the Spanish and American navies, while a majority of them know from reports which for some years past have been officially sent to the Department, the formidable character of the Spanish war ships generally, they have no fear from that fact. Even should war result it would not be, excepting so far as the Island of Cuba is concerned, a war of invasion on our part, and the naval warfare would not be on the high seas, but confined to the Cuban coast and to ports of the United States, which prominent officials think would be thoroughly protected by our iron-clad monitors and torpedo obstructions. Old naval officers who have seen active service on our iron-clads even before these were brought to the present state of efficiency, declare, without hesitation, that one of our monitors could sink a Spanish man-of-war in a close contest in a few minutes.

Our monitors having but little hull visible —only 18 inches above the water-line—are practically invulnerable, and even the part exposed could be still further protected, if deemed necessary, by means of fenders. A Spaniard could of course decline to fight by running away from the monitor, and the latter, not being constructed for speed, could not make a successful pursuit. But after the action should be begun, and the two vessels be in close quarters, our monitor would soon disable its opponent. The Spanish war steamers which are represented to be of such a formidable character are plated with iron to the extent of four inches thick, but within 1,000 yards of a monitor this would be considered of little importance in the face of one of our powerful 15 inch guns, in which are used from 50 to 100 pounds of powder at a single discharge. The Spanish iron-clads being constructed after the model of ordinary vessels, present a large hull above the water-line, affording fine marks for our gunners.

The most vulnerable point about a monitor is the turret, which may be prevented from revolving by an enemy's shot; but great care has been exercised to perfect them in this respect. Even should the turret be disabled, the guns could be directed by means of the helm. Though this latter course would occasion some inconvenience, it would not destroy the efficiency of the monitor. Again, it has been said that American ships are deficient in heavy rifled ordance, and that every foreign fighting ship is armed with guns of that class; but officers of experience express the opinion that the employment of rifled ordnance on armed ships in preference to smooth bores, is an anomaly, if not a grave error. A vessel of war should be constructed to resist shot and shell at the shortest distance, and they argue that a rifled piece is inferior to a smooth-bore at a very short range, say 500 or 1,000 yards. Generally the smooth-bore is just as effective at distances from 1,000 to 1,200 yards, or as an old naval officer who commanded a monitor during the war, expressed it, "When I have work to do within 1,000 yards, I don't want any rifled ordnance."

The question as to the seagoing qualities of monitors being next referred to, it was stated by one of the most prominent officers of the Navy that they can go to sea with perfect safety, but they should always have another vessel with them, for the reason that the compasses on a monitor, on account of the great mass of surrounding iron, work sluggishly and inaccurately, and another vessel is almost indispensable for them to steer by, especially at night; otherwise they are perfectly safe at sea.

The officials in the New York Navy Yard entertain a very poor opinion of the fighting capacity of the Spanish war vessel Arapiles, at present undergoing repairs. Like the majority of the Spanish iron-clads, she is too unwieldly, they say, and would be blown to pieces by any of the American monitors.

THE DICTATOR. The heavy iron clad monitor Dictator, now at New London, will be fitted for sea at once. The vessel will probably be sent to Boston for repairs, owing to the occupation of the Brooklyn dry-dock by the Spanish iron-clad Arapiles. The Dictator is one of our most formidable vessels, the only fault being that she draws so much water. She will, however, prove a terrible antagonist for any vessel against whom her guns can be brought to bear. Her dimensions are as follows: Tonnage, 3,033; length, 320 feet; beam, 50 feet; depth of hold, 22 feet; draught of water, 20 feet. The inside diameter of her turret is 24 feet and its thickness 15 inches. She carries two fifteen-inch guns and has a ram at each end.

The N. Y. Post says that an experienced officer of high rank at the Navy Yard on Monday expressed opinions widely differing from those given out by some other officers in regard to the ability of our navy to cope with the Spanish iron-clads. He said that 15-inch guns were carried by all our monitors, and that any of these could send a ball clear through the hull of any vessel in the Spanish fleet. The armor of the Arapiles could not protect her machinery from shot of such weight, and he believed that one of our monitors could disable her within fifteen minutes. He also thought that a wooden vessel such as the Colorado, with her heavy battery, would be successful in a contest with any Spanish man-of-war afloat.

A Washington despatch says a strong sentiment is manifested among the people in opposition to unnecessarily precipitating a war, and many letters are coming to Washington representing that view of the people. Some of the writers of these letters are men of great influence, and some of them speak in earnest deprecation of war, and point out that opponents of the administration are most conspicuous in calling for a fight. The Government has its own views of its duty, and is unswerved from what it deems just and necessary by any influence from any side, trusting to time and results for vindication.

THE VIRGINIUS. (Secretary Fish, being asked if the Department knew officially of the past history of the Virginius, replied that it did, the vessel having been twice owned by the Government. Once she belonged to the division of captured and abandoned property of the Treasury, and again, in 1870, she was seized at Mobile for a debt of the defaulting Assistant Treasurer. She was then brought to the Potomac and sold to a New York man named Patterson. Her name was then the "Virgin," but upon being taken to New York her name was changed to "Virginius." She was built on the Clyde for a blockade runner during the Rebellion.

THE VIRGINIUS CASE.

Washington despatches from the Boston Journal's correspondent on the 19th contain the following statements relative to the question at issue between our Government and that of Spain:

There are indications here of a growing feeling in favor of maintaining friendly relations with Spain. Those very intimately connected with Government officials, begin to express an opinion that an amicable adjustment of the difficulty is entirely practicable. Very considerable weight is attached to the cable despatch this morning, announcing it to be the intention of the Madrid Government to secure an honorable settlement. It may again be stated that there are the best of reasons for believing that the formal demands of our Government had been presented to the Spanish Cabinet before it had considered the decision which is announced. It is also believed here that the Castelar Government has sufficient strength both to maintain itself and to make the honorable and satisfactory reparation promised. Our Government is of the opinion that the request for delay on the part of Spain is made in good faith. It is natural that Spain should desire to have full detailed official reports from Spanish officers before final action is taken.

It is not believed that our own Cabinet have exceeded their instructions in making the demand more severe than it would be possible for the Spanish Cabinet to satisfy and sustain themselves, nor has our Cabinet gone so far as to make war inevitable. Every possible diplomatic contingency has been guarded against on our part.

The evidence already at hand in the matter of the Virginius has confirmed the opinion of some of the officers of the Government, that the Virginius must be conceded to have been a filibuster, and that our flag could not protect her within the marine league of Cuba. It is stated that the Virginius carried both Venezuelan and Cuban colors after leaving this country; although having her original American papers. The locality of the capture, the nationality of innocent persons on board and the barbarous executions are the points upon which the case hangs. It is the opinion of some of the constitutional lawyers that the precedent of the Alabama and Geneva arbitration will give our Government trouble in the diplomatic discussion of the subject.

INSURANCE.

BANGOR, Nov. 20, 1873.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier:

A recent decision of a Court in another State, copied somewhat extensively into papers in this State, has raised the question whether policies issued by insurance companies not admitted to do business here could, in case of loss, be enforced against the underwriters. The decision referred to is based on the particular provisions of the statute of the State which prohibits all such insurance and thus makes the policy void. Such, however, is not the case with the law of this State. On the contrary, in drafting the insurance law of Maine, it was expressly provided as if any policy is procured in any insurance company on application forwarded without license, the policy shall bind the company. If a policy is procured by the party out of the State in an unlicensed company, the policy is valid even without any provision of statute making it so, provided only it be valid by the law of the State where the company is located.

This being so it may be asked what advantage is derived from the establishment of the Insurance Department and the requirement for companies to be licensed before being permitted to do business here. The advantages are many.

In the first place the people have the additional security in being able to know what companies to trust with their risks. How much this is worth may be judged from the fact that during the first three years of the Department only one fire or marine company failed of all those admitted to the State, save only those that were ruined by the conflagrations of Boston and Chicago.

Then there is a second advantage of the greatest importance that in case of loss the company may be sued in our own courts, with the security afforded by the law for the collection of the execution which may be recovered, without the necessity as before the law existed of going into the State where the company is located to enforce the policy.

A third very important advantage derived from the existence of the Department and the consequent licensing of the companies doing business here, is that arising from the provisions of the law bearing upon the construction of the various terms of the policy. Our law allows no advantage to be taken of any misdescription or change in the property, unless material, and holds the company responsible for the acts of the agents and in various other ways prevents dishonest companies from practicing their arts and quibbles to the injury of honest policy holders, and in general holds foreign companies amenable to the laws of our State, as unlicensed companies are not.

These combined benefits of the law, requiring companies to be licensed before being permitted to do business here, are not only all together, but each separately sufficient to offer the strongest inducements for our people to trust their risks to such companies alone as are willing to come under the cognizance of our laws and take license under them.

"BLOODY SANTIAGO." Santiago de Cuba, the scene of the late Spanish atrocity, is the oldest city on the island of Cuba, and next to Havana, the largest. It is a well-built town, the houses being chiefly constructed of stone, which gives them a substantial appearance, unusual to the tropics. There is a fine public square containing a statue of Ferdinand VII; there is also a cathedral, a theological seminary, and other public buildings. It is the seat of the Archbishop, and the residence of the Governor of eastern Cuba. The harbor is difficult of entrance, but is deep enough to float a frigate, and is well defended by several forts. The town is shut in by mountains and is considered very unhealthy and subject to ravages of yellow fever. It has suffered from severe earthquakes. Steamers connect it with Havana, Matanzas, and other West Indian towns. It has now gained such an unenviable notoriety as the "black hole" gave to Calcutta.

The Roman Catholic Archbishop in Cuba hastened to ratify the slaughter, "that it is an ill wind that blows no one good," by announcing to His Excellency that "great jubilee fills our hearts" because twenty of the Virginius captives embraced the Catholic religion before they were shot. The delighted prelate calls attention to the neatness and despatch with which this "brilliant triumph to our holy religion" was effected, by the following off hand statement:

"The prisoners were turned over to their spiritual advisers, at 8 o'clock in the morning and shot at 4 P. M., thus giving our priests only eight hours' time to convert the twenty."

IMPORTANT BANKRUPTCY OPINION.—Attorney General Williams has rendered a very important opinion on the question submitted to him by the Secretary of the Treasury as to the construction of the Bankrupt Act.

The points decided are: First, that payment made by a debtor to a creditor who has committed an act of bankruptcy, and against whom proceedings in bankruptcy have been instituted and are pending, but who has not yet been adjudged bankrupt, will not be valid in the event of an adjudication of bankruptcy in such proceedings, if the payment transpires subsequent to the filing of the petition therein.

Second. That payment made by a debtor to a creditor who is known to have committed an act of bankruptcy, but against whom proceedings have not at the time been taken, is valid so far as it is affected by existing bankrupt laws.

The Spaniards in Havana, have sent to their joy over the capture of the Virginius by a bull fight.

THE TWENTY-SIXTH ANNUAL SESSION of this Association will be held

At CITY HALL, in Bangor,

Commencing on TUESDAY, November 18th, at 9 o'clock A. M., and closing on FRIDAY EVENING, November 21st under the direction of

Prof. GEO. F. BOOT, of Chicago.

The Hall has been refitted and will present a very attractive appearance.

Tickets of membership, one dollar; Single admissions during the sessions, 25 cents; To the closing Concert, 50 cents. Tickets to be procured of the Secretary, or at the door of the Hall.

Books for the use of the Convention, free. Church Music, Glee and Chorus practice, Vocal Drill, Solo and Quartette Singing, Exercises afternoon and evening occupy each day.

Each membership ticket purchased will entitle its owner to a copy of the "Joy,"—the new Book to be used. This will enable the singers to become more familiar with the music to be practiced by having it with them to look over out of the Convention, and will also help to carry the good effects of the work home with them, after the Convention is over.

That the Social Hour may prove pleasant and interesting, all who will take part in Individual performances are requested to come prepared, and report early, that their pieces may be properly placed. Organist and word to the Conductor or Committee. Social Hour every afternoon.

It is believed that the decision to have this year a convention for musical enjoyment and thorough drill, instead of a series of performances, will meet the approval of a large number of the teachers, choristers and singers of this part of the State.

Of our Conductor we need not speak. He has always been cordially welcomed among us, and won the commendation of all. We believe we have "the right man in the right place,"—one who will give us new music and best practical ideas, that we can carry into our teaching, our choirs and our homes.

Free return tickets to those coming by railroad or steamboat. Persons wishing to secure boarding places will please apply early, by mail, to Mr. S. F. Shaldbury, Bangor, or engage them through their friends.

SCHOONER DAMAGED.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

NEW YORK CITY.

[illegible] TAZED—HIS COUNSEL AT WORK.

NEW YORK, Nov 20. Tweed was engaged last night in adjusting his business. He refused to see but very few friends; and is believed to have stayed all night at the Metropolitan Hotel. It is understood that his counsel are planning to have the proceedings of the Court set aside if possible, without taking the case to the Court of Appeals. An opinion of Judge Davis delivered at the first trial is printed, to the effect that the prisoner can be sentenced only on one count.

THE JURY UNANIMOUS THROUGHOUT.

Adolph Opper, the second juror, stated in conversation last night that from the time the jury went out they were all in favor of conviction, but differed as to points of law. David Palmer, the foreman, stated that had any one of the jury been disposed to receive bribes it would have been impossible as they were so closely guarded. All were in favor of conviction from the first.

ESCAPE OF THE MURDERER SHARKEY.

The female apparel for Sharkey is believed to have been passed into the Tombs at different times in a basket. District Attorney [illegible] and the keepers some time since that Sharkey would attempt to escape, and [illegible] that every one of them shall now be discharged. Maggie Jordan, Sharkey's mistress, who was arrested last evening has been a daily visitor at the Tombs for some time past, and is believed to have furnished the clothing. She left a few moments before his escape. The Warden says, however, that Mrs Wesley Allen gave him the ticket on which he went out. He had shaved off his mustache and wore a green veil.

Judge Sutherland, in his charge to the Grand Jury to day, recommended that the matter be investigated, adding that the escape of a man convicted of murder must be looked upon as a great calamity.

STOKES AND WALWORTH.

Last Sunday while in the chapel at Sing Sing Stokes was seized with vertigo and had to be assisted to the hospital. He is said to be suffering much mental as well as physical agony. Walworth is reported to be breaking down in health at Sing Sing.

GAINING FUNDS.

The associated banks hold $31,050,000 legal tenders—an increase since yesterday of $1,25[illegible]. There were $50,000 of specie received at the Assay office to day.

LUCETTE MEYERS RELEASED.

Lucette Meyers, the witness in the Goodrich murder case, who has been confined in jail for the last two months, was discharged this morning on recommendation of District Attorney Britton. The ground for her release was her many conflicting confessions, and it is believed that the last is the true one, viz—that she knew nothing at all about the murder.

MEETING OF THE CLEARING HOUSE—REVISION OF THE ARTICLES.

The Clearing House meeting to day continued three hours. The report of the Committee was voted on as a whole after a motion to table and one to postpone sixty days had been rejected. Representatives of the Bank of Commerce, Metropolitan, Grocers and State of New York banks withdrew. The articles of the Association were then taken up separately for amendment but from one to nineteen were passed over. Article two was amended so that no member of the Clearing House shall redeem checks of any association, firm, etc., except regularly incorporated banks located in the cities of New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Hoboken, which banks are subject to examination by a committee of the Clearing House when deemed necessary. Section three of article twenty was amended so that the Clearing House will not receive upon deposit as cash from dealers, checks drawn otherwise than upon the banks which are members of the Association or the regularly incorporated banks mentioned in article twenty. A motion to allow three per cent interest on deposits was rejected by a heavy majority.

The feeling was very strong against certification of checks and paying interest on deposits, and it is certain that both of these customs will be abolished by the Clearing House. The result of the meeting was a great victory for reform and means an end to reckless banking. The banks will meet again on Tuesday next to finally dispose of the report.

WASHINGTON

DECREASE OF REVENUE—NAVAL EXPENSES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. A Washington despatch says that the increase of the debt for November will be considerably larger than the increase for October and will be due to the decrease of receipts and the increase of expenditures. The revenue, both from customs and internal revenue sources will be considerably less than the revenue of last months. The decrease in customs receipts is somewhat greater than the falling off in internal revenue. The Cuban excitement and the expenses of the navy department for the fitting out of vessels have been the occasion of large drafts upon the regular naval appropriations.

THE TREASURY BALANCES.

The balances in the Treasury to-day are:

Currency,	$2,0e8,450
Special deposit of legal tenders for the redemption of certificates of deposit,	15,970,000
Coin, (including $81,315,472 in coin certificates)	28,989,700
Legal Tenders outstanding,	362,729,091

CHICAGO.

THE BILLIARD TOURNAMENT.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. In the billiard tournament yesterday afternoon, Ubassy beat Slosson by a score of 400 to 370 in 48 innings.—The largest runs of Ubassy were 57, 60 and 25, Slosson 49, 37 and 52. The game last night between J. Dion and Bessinger was slow and uninteresting, and was won by Dion in the 21st inning. Bessinger made a score of 336. Neither made a notable run.

NEW YORK STATE.

The Cuban Massacres!

FORMER REPORTS CORRECTED!

No Executions Since the 8th!

Fifty-three Victims in All!

NUMEROUS ARRESTS AT HAVANA!

REPORTS OF SUMMARY VENGEANCE!

THE SPANISH FORCE IN CUBA!

THE MORO CASTLE BOARDED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. The steamship Moro Castle from Havana, reports that on her arrival at that port Nov. 12th, she was at once boarded by officers. As long as her passengers remained on board they were unmolested, but the moment they disembarked some were seized by the Spaniards. Of the 17 steerage passengers from New York, 6 were arrested, but were discharged immediately after being searched.

SEARCHED FOR CONTRABAND DESPATCHES.

The explanation was made by the officers that they were supposed to be bearers of despatches, but it was found upon inquiry that the persons for whom they were searching were on board the City of New York. Spaniards in Havana had been informed by telegraph that suspicious persons had left this city. On her arrival at Havana the City of New York was boarded in the same manner as the Moro Castle. Her passengers were at once seized as before reported and searched, and six declared guilty. Of this number three were women, and extensive correspondence was found secreted about their clothing. Their fate could not be learned when the Moro Castle sailed. Rumors of the shooting of a portion of them had been circulated, but were discredited.

EXPRESS AGENT CONDEMNED.

Bombaher, the express agent, whose arrest on a charge of carrying treasonable correspondence has been announced, once endeavored to throw the packages out of the window into the harbor, but they fell inside the railing of the vessel and were quickly picked up and examined by his captors. He was at once condemned to death and the following day fixed for the execution. Before the time arrived the Moro Castle sailed.

NUMEROUS EXECUTIONS.

By extensive correspondence which had been seized many persons on the island suspected were implicated, and as the Moro Castle left Havana they were being shot without mercy. It is estimated that about 40 patriots on various portions of the island had met this fate. Meantime the most extensive preparations for the reception of the Tornado were going forward in Havana.

THE SPANISH IRON-CLAD

Captain Montenegro, of the Arapiles, informed a reporter yesterday that he had received orders from the Home Government to get ready for sea at the earliest moment possible and proceed to Cuba. He expects her to be out of the dry dock in 20 days, when nothing further will remain to be done except to take her powder and armament. Her powder is now in the yard magazine. Her guns are of the Armstrong pattern. Considerable sums of money have been sent here in accordance with the orders of the Spanish Government to hasten the completion of the Arapiles.

THE VIRGINIUS.

Private advices from Santiago de Cuba tend to prove the fact of the possession by the Virginius of regular documents, clearance register, &c., of an American vessel, and her clearance is in due form from Kingston, Jamaica.

SPAIN'S ADMISSION.

A Washington despatch says that correspondence will show that Spain virtually admits that her decrees are openly ignored in Cuba, and that she has not thus far been able to enforce those which concern the property of Americans.

OFFICIAL DESPATCHES—THE LATEST REPORT OF EXECUTIONS UNTRUE—THE TOTAL NUMBER OF EXECUTIONS FIFTY-THREE.

WASHINGTON, Nov 20. The Secretary of State has received the following despatch from Consul-General Hall.—

HAVANA, Nov. 18.

The Consul at Santiago reports that the total number of executions of persons from the Virginius was 53 and that there had been no executions since the 8th inst.

The statements published here on the 14th inst. respecting fifty-seven additional executions prove untrue.

VIEWS OF THE SITUATION—NO WAR BUT FREE CUBA

Evidence is accumulated that Cuban matters will require much correspondence and consequent delay. It is asserted in prominent quarters that no complications need be feared as the Administration sees its way clear, and while war will be averted the probability is that Cuba will be free.

SPANISH FORCE IN CUBA.

MADRID, Nov 20. It was officially announced this morning that the effective Spanish force in Cuba numbers 54,000 men.

FITTING OUT VESSELS.

BOSTON, Nov. 20. Increased activity is manifest at the Navy Yard to-day, owing to orders received to carry on work night and day until the Brooklyn and Franklin are ready for sea. The latter was placed in dry dock yesterday. Work in all shops where gas light can be introduced will be carried on at night.

WAR VESSELS FOR CUBAN WATERS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. The Navy Department is to-day ordering officers to the first class steamers Franklin at Boston, and Colorado at New York, the second class steamer Brooklyn at Boston, and the ironclad Dictator which is soon to be towed from New London, Conn., to New York, all of which vessels will sail soon for Cuban waters. Capt. Edward Simpson will command the Franklin, Capt. Geo. M. Ransom the Colorado, and Capt. Wm. T. Truxton the Brooklyn. The commanding officer for the Dictator has not yet been selected.

FROM BOSTON.

THE DOUBLE SUICIDE.

BOSTON, Nov. 20. The suicide of Marian F. Pfiffer, the young nurse at the City Hospital yesterday, was immediately succeeded by the suicide of Arthur L. Foster, a medical novice and house officer in the institution. But the last occurrence was kept secret by request of relations of the deceased. It now appears that Foster was called in the night to prescribe for Miss Pfiffer and mistook her symptoms for those of hysteria, and upon her death he was so chagrined at not recognizing the indications of opium that he immediately went to a bath room and opened the femoral artery. He was highly esteemed.

THE MAYORALTY.

At the Republican Municipal Convention held this evening, Samuel C. Cobb received the nomination for Mayor, and Joseph Smith as Street Commissioner. These two gentlemen have now received their nominations from all parties.

NEW JERSEY.

READY TO RESUME WORK.

PATTERSON, Nov. 20. The Rogers and Grant Locomotive Works have informed a Committee of the Board of Aldermen that they are willing to resume operations at once if the men now employed will agree to work at a reduced rate of wages and it is hoped that the Danforth Works will also resume and that 1500 men may be set to work next week.

The Mayor and Aldermen have called a public meeting for Monday night next to consider plans for the city work.

KANSAS.

DESTRUCTIVE PRAIRIE FIRES.

ATCHISON, Nov. 20. On Saturday last a destructive prairie fire swept over a large area of country, about [illegible] miles from this city, and [illegible] Monday. About six miles of ties on the Central Branch R. R. were burned and several small bridges were consumed. The destruction of fences and houses, &c., was immense. Several houses near Corning were burned and also a large quantity of corn in shocks.

Several disastrous fires have occurred along the line of the Atchinson, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad. No train has passed over the Central Branch Railroad since Saturday until yesterday when the regular train got through.

MARYLAND.

FREE CUBAN MASS MEETING.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20. The mass meeting at the Maryland Institute, last night of the citizens who favor Free Cuba and national intervention, was the largest and most enthusiastic ever held in Baltimore, since Kossuth's reception. Every part of the immense hall was crowded, and hundreds were turned away unable to gain admittance. Col. E. M. Yerger presided. Resolutions were adopted by acclamation condemning the insult to the flag, denouncing the butchery that followed, declaring it the duty of the government to make an immediate demand for the surrender of the survivors, the surrender of the Virginius and the surrender of the Spanish butchers, the occupation of Cuba until reparation is made to the families of the slain, the recognition of the belligerent rights of Cuba, and standing by the declaration made to Great Britain in 1842 by the United States, viz: In every regularly documented vessel the crew who navigate it will find their protection in the flag that is over them.

EXCITEMENT IN THE ASSEMBLY.

PARIS, Nov. 19. The Assembly held a tumultuous session to-night. M. Depriere, member of the Right, moved an amendment to the report of the Committee on Prolongation, providing that President McMahon's powers be prolonged seven years independently of the constitutional bills. Messieurs Laboulaye, Grevy and others, opposed the amendment but it was adopted by a majority of 66. A motion was then made on the part of the Right that a committee of thirty be appointed to report on the constitutional bills, which was adopted by a majority of 68 votes. There is much excitement in Paris over the result.

RESIGNATIONS TENDERED.

Immediately after the adjournment of the Assembly last night the members of the Cabinet waited upon President McMahon and tendered their resignations. He refused to accept them and begged the Ministers to retain their offices until a new Cabinet is formed.

THE DOMINION

—A brick building, 24 by 34 feet, intended to contain the gas works for the Bangor House, has been going up so rapidly the past two days that a bystander could see it grow. Sixteen bricklayers and six tenders, under the superintendence of Mr. Isaac Small, made things lively around those walls.

—A gentleman living on the West side who doesn't want us to publish his name, had his hands badly burned Wednesday evening by the explosion of a kerosene lamp he was carrying up stairs. His stair carpet was ruined, but the burning oil was extinguished before doing any other damage.

—The Observer says that a large number of horses have passed through Dover, during the past week, en route for the woods, and a large number more are to go up next week. Appearances indicate that as much will be done in the woods in that section as formerly notwithstanding reports to the contrary.

—The woolen mill at Guilford which was sold at auction on Saturday last, was bought of Henry Hudson, Esq., of Guilford. The price paid was $10,000. The mill and machinery originally cost about $23,000, and was owned by a stock company who couldn't agree in the management of the property.

—The steamer Cambridge arrived from Boston between 12 and one o'clock yesterday morning, bringing a very heavy freight, among which were 1200 bbls. of flour and 400 bbls. of apples, etc. She sailed again for Boston at 11 A. M. The Katahdin left Boston yesterday afternoon and will arrive here to-day.

—The Portland Advertiser—which has recently consolidated the State with its weekly edition—comes to us in a new dress of type, looking very bright and readable. Its conductor, brother Richardson, is one of the most experienced and accomplished journalists in Maine; and aside from its strain of political misanthropy, the Advertiser is a very pleasant newspaper.

HOME FOR AGED WOMEN. The sewing circle for the "Home for Aged Women" propose to hold a sale of useful and fancy articles at Norombega Hall the week before Christmas, accompanied by some stage entertainments and tables of refreshments. All the ladies of the different religious societies who feel an interest in this charitable object are requested to attend a meeting at City Hall to morrow (Saturday) afternoon at 3 o'clock, to make arrangements for the occasion.

AFTERNOON.

In the afternoon a successful rehearsal was had, at which a considerable audience was present. Mendelssohn's duett and chorus, "I waited for the Lord," was conducted by Mr. Davenport, and the duett was admirably sustained by Mrs Crowell and Mrs Wasgatt. During the "social hour," Prof. Root sang with his usual good taste and expression the descriptive song "Wind of the Wintry Night," by Russell; Mr W. A Patten sang "The Bloom is on the Rye" (Bishop) in a very pleasing manner, accompanied by Mr. Davenport; Mr. Haynes by request repeated "The Serenade" referred to yesterday, being accompanied by Mr Frank Crowell, Miss Eva Smith's rendition of Schubert's "Last Greeting" was much admired, Mrs. W. H Shaw's excellent voice was heard to great advantage in "The Bonney Blue Moon," by Linley. Miss Wiley sang the Scotch ballad "Better bide awee," (Claribel,) and in response to an enthusiastic recall rendered "The Maiden's Resolution," by Young. The Hallelujah Chorus, sung with much spirit, closed the session.

EVENING.

The exercises of the evening were varied by a song—"Bonnie sweet Bessie, Maid of Dundee," by Mrs S. C Harlow, and a trio, "Life has no Power," by Donizetti, sung by Mrs. and Mr. Crowell and Mr. J. M. Haynes. Miss Wiley sang the obligato and Mrs Crowell and Mrs. Wasgatt the duett, in "Beautiful Zion," the chorus being given by the class.

THE CONCERT THIS EVENING,

under the direction of Prof. Root, will comprise a very choice and attractive collection of music. It will consist of 1st—Selections from Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise.

2d—Choruses, glees and part songs from the works of modern German composers.

SENATOR SHERMAN ON THE FINANCES

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press telegraphs:

"Senator Sherman of Ohio, who is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said, in conversation to-day, that he has no doubt some wild inflation measure will be rushed through the House during the first week of the session, but he is confident it will secure its quietus in the Senate. According to the Senator, as grave will probably be the Finance Committee. He does not see how any measure of this character could bring relief to the present paralyzed condition of business, nor can he imagine how it could restore confidence in monetary circles. In his judgment the crisis, if not interfered with by Congress will in a short time find its own remedy. While entertaining these views chairman admits that the masses of the people are anxious for more currency, but he thinks they do not know what is good for them, and that the fulfilment of their wishes would only result in more wide-spread distress.

A WISE LITTLE WOMAN

(Concluded.)

"Some day, Scot, when you have taught Charlie and me all that we shall be able to learn, (not much, you know), you will go out into the great world and learn happiness like mine, only deeper, and when you tell me of it—as you will do, because we shall always be friends—I shall say, what you are saying to me now with your kind eyes: 'God bless you, my little woman!'"

Scot took the little earnest hands and held them closely for a minute, but if he spoke it all I did not hear what he said. Then he went away, and Pen sat down beside me, very still and quiet, while the pitying darkness covered the child her age.

II.

"Isn't that a true verse, Charlie—That is the sorrow to be left behind?"

Pennie drew my head home from the station. We had been to see Walter off to London on his way to the continent, where he was to spend six months with a party of old college mates. The reins were unnecessarily tight in Pennie's hand, the little rounded cheeks were very pale in the pickle March sunshine, and the young voice was bright only by a great effort.

"Which I supposed is a very soothing reflection for you," I said, smiling. "As you love Walter so much better than yourself."

"Yes, but I was thinking of some one else, too. May we drive on to see Mrs. Cowen? She said the parting would break her heart."

"Never mind to-day, Pennie, Scot is there. He is best to be with her now—best to be with her always, if she did but know it."

"Not better than Walter, Charlie," she replied, her eyes all aflame in their sorrow; "not better than such a dear, dear, peasant fellow. Scot is not the very idol of his mother's heart—like Walter."

"No in consequence of his mother's heart being set against him." But I stopped with a laugh, for I would not vex Pennie to-day with the old argument of ours.

"Now, Charlie, she said, her face so happy in its love, so wistful and tender in its first pain of parting, in spite of all nonchalance to say of Scot's goodness and of Walter's thoughtlessness, you know very well that everybody likes Walter best. They can't help it—No more can I."

She seemed to miss Walter very much, and she was just her own restful self all the time—always waiting on me, seeing Scot, and acting the pleasant, demure little mistress of the house when our father came home at night. Often I felt very angry with her; and at least on day when Scot had one of his old hard struggling mornings. I followed her out and told her I could not stand it and see his brave patient pain.

"I ought better to come in to study with us," I said coldly. "You should learn nothing all your life rit in than learn from him now."

"But there is none else to learn from," she pouted. "So I must."

Then I wish to Heaven he would care less for me good, and go away for his own sake."

"That would be very unkind, though I dare say that he will do so soon," said Pennie coldly.

"As if all the world should judge Scot most tenderly and kindly, Pennie, I cried."

"And so I do, dear Charlie," she answered, with quite earnestness.

"Then leave him to himself. I shall miss you terribly, as you know, but I would rather you never came until our work is over, and we meet on equal ground."

Charlie," she said, in a voice of utter solitariness, "I am always lonely and restless and melancholy away from you, but I will not come again."

And she did not for I was sure she though I wanted what I said.

After that, Pennie's behavior to Scot changed. Day after day she forgotten poor Scot altogether, in the most easy and natural manner imaginable, offering no forced reasons, showing no consciousness of estrangement, and day after day she grew quieter and quiet—to Scot—not kinder exactly, no more considering, but more thoughtful. She went alone very often to see Mrs. Cowen, but those visits never cheered her. Her mother's blind and devoted idolization of the son, contrasted with the son's cold, carelessness of the mother fretted Pennie's tender heart sorely. I saw how her thoughts ran upon it after her visits, and at these times I never spoke a word against Walter. Yet sometimes when Pennie and me look before and he had not time to write to me, and so shut me up and left his mother about him, my impatient words would escape me, and I said that a man who could not take a few minutes' trouble to please a mother who loved him so dearly, was not worthy to wear any other love.

Walter had been away three months, when one day Scot was sent for home in haste, Mrs. Cowen being ill. He was away all night, but at ten next morning when Pennie and I strolled into the study, there he was waiting for me.

"Why Scot," I exclaimed, meeting him gladly. "I did—ever you back, certainly not to work. Have you breakfasted yet? How is Mrs Cowen?"

"All the better, thank you," he said, turning slowly from me to take Pennie's offered hand. "I breakfasted long ago."

"Have you sent for Walter?" asked Pennie, her eyes fixed upon his face.

"Yes."

And then he sat down calmly in his place, and we read together, while Pennie stood silent, leaning against the window frame. I did not know whether she was glad that she should see Walter so soon, or sorry for his pleasant excursion to be interrupted.

Each day now, as soon as our studies were over Scot went home, and in the afternoon Pennie drove me to Easter Hill, and leaving me in the carriage at the gate, went up to the house on foot to see Walter's mother.—She never stopped very long, though I am sure that if Mrs. Cowen had liked to have had her she would have taken up her abode there to watch and nurse by night and day.—But the sick mother cared for no one only counting the hours before her son should come, and fretting that Scot had not bade him hasten. The day when Walter might have arrived passed, and only then could I see how unquestionably Pennie had depended on his coming. She seemed bewildered; unable to believe he was not in the train, and she stood on the platform as it rolled away, her yearning eyes following it piteously.

"There were so many hindrances possible," I told her, "so many unforeseen things might have occurred to delay him." But she never answered me a word; and when that whole week went by and still he did not come, her silence grew more distressing to me than passion or anger.

On the ninth day the post brought two letters. One for Pennie, which she read with cold tight lips, then threw across to me, and one for Scot, which he had taken away with him unopened.

The old lady was so fidgetty, Walter wrote that it would be ridiculous to suppose that she really meant him to come home from such a distance, and have the bore and expense of going back when her little attack of fear had subsided. She wanted him with her. In the meantime he had written to her and it would be all right.

I read no more. I folded the letter and passed it back to Pennie, asking her if she did not think it would be better for Scot to have a holiday for a time, that he might not feel his duties pulling him two different ways.

"No, Charlie," she said at once. "Papa and I both think (as you would if you had been to see Mrs. Cowen) that it is better for Scot to have his old work. If he were constantly with her, fretting as she always is for Walter, it would harass and weary him more than the change does. She never expresses a wish to have him always there; yet he is a tender cheerful nurse, Charlie."

III.

"It was the morning after Mrs. Cowen's funeral, and I was sitting in a pleasant study, basking, as invalids love to do, in the morning sunshine. Beaming at the window, in her old attitude, stood Pennie—looking out upon her cherished flowers, but seeing little of their beauty. Scot was sitting at his table, his head upon his hand. Whether it was the long rain watching for Walter, or the sleepless nights and hard work, or the old hidden grief, I did not know, but certainly the face was white and haggard, as I had ever seen it before. Suddenly he looked at me with his own brave smile

"Come, Charlie, we have been idle too long dear fellow."

I had risen, and was sauntering towards him, when the door opened and a familiar face looked in upon us.

"Pennie, Pennie, darling!" Fancy never coming to meet me!" Walter cried, throwing down his hat and coming forward, grand and hands me in the glowing sunshine.—"Pennie, darling, here I am And he was close beside her, his arms open to receive her.

She gave one look into his face, so swift that she seemed to have moved her eyes from the garden into the room.

"Where are you going, Scot?" she said—"Please don't go away. This your room, not ours. I am going myself when I have spoken to you and Walter

"Pennie, are you angry dearest?" whispered Walter.

"No, not at all," she answered, moving from him and standing beside the table at which Scot had sat down again. "I cannot now make myself feel even angry with you, Walter."

"Thank you Thank you dear," he said joyfully. "You shall with me. I want to tell you it was"

"Tell me here," she answered very quietly.

"That's hardly fair," he complained (still, soon I thought) "but of course, my darling, I never fancied my mother was really so ill

"I told you," recurred Pennie, still more quietly

"Yes, you did," replied Walter, looking for the first time a little nervous and anxious, but I knew she was always fanciful, and thought this was one of her false alarms—"You ought to be sorry for me, Pennie. I thought you would feel for me a little grief."

She did not look, in a face, where was a shade of real grief, and he went on passionately in her silence.

"Pennie, I want to speak to you. Come away Why do you stay here?"

"Because, she said, moving a little and laying her hand on the back of Scot's chair, because I would rather speak here Scot, will you listen to me, and teach me once again—teach me what to do?"

She paused for a few moments Walter leaning against the table, looked down upon her in astonishment

"Scot, if I have learned that I have made a great, great mistake in thinking that I loved your brother more than—any one else, isn't it best and kindest to tell him so now, before it is too late?"

Scot did not answer her, and she repeated this question, her beautiful eyes childlike in their pleading.

"Wouldn't be right to tell him so, Scot, or to go on in the false mood?"

"Right to tell him so," answered Scot, in tones low and quiet.

"Then, Walter," she said, raising her face to him as it flushed and paled rapidly, "I will tell you of my mistake now, before your brother and my own. There were once two gifts of love within my reach; and the one which my eager, ignorant hand grasped, because it seemed most bright and winning to my dazzled eye, was not the one which could satisfy my heart. I did not understand either then. I was as powerless to feel the deep self-forgetfulness of the one as the shallow selfishness of the other; but now that I know my own heart, Walter, I cannot hide its disappointment. Some day, I myself shall be bold and sufficient, perhaps—fearful, too, I dare say; those who give much love, will but little in return, often are—and I should not like to feel that when I summoned you to my dying bed you would not heed the summons. I should not like all through any life to pour out a wealth of love on one who could laugh at me for the exacting intensity of the gift. And so I am very, very grateful that I have read this in my heart before it was too late."

"This is nonsense!" Pennie, interrupted Walter with a forced smile. "Come and let me explain to you."

"You have done so," Pennie said, still with her hand on Scot's chair, and still with her eyes clear and undrooping. "You have explained it all to me during the last few weeks. Now it is my turn, and I am trying to do so; only it seems as if I could not say much even now of what is in my own heart. Your mother had a faithful careful nurse, Walter, in all her illness; and by him no duty was neglected, no pleasure sought. Charlie, did Scot seek his own pleasure; did he fail in any one of his duties, though all the time that Walter was securing his pleasure ceaselessly, and failing in his only real duty?"

"Not one," I answered.

"Not one' she repeated, the little hand tight on his chair, but her face never turned to Scot. "Not one. Did any remembrance of his pain weaken his hand, or chill his heart? Did it Charlie?"

"Never," I said again, looking for a moment into Walter's wicked and moody face.

"Never," she repeated. "Did any one thought of himself when him shrink from his duty to you, Charlie, because I made it hard to him? or from his duty to his mother, because I blamed him? always that her own idolized son had left her to die alone?"

"Walter, the love of such a heart is a prize to be greateful for through all years; and through all years I will be grateful that once this prize was mine, Scot, dear Scot, you have taught me all the little that I know; teach me what to do now that my heart is hungering wearily for such a love as that from which I turned away not long ago."

Not a word did Scot answer, while his face was hidden in his hands.

"I am waiting for your answer Scot."

"The hand that had been on his chair loosened its hold; the little standing figure slipped down, and kneeled upon the floor beside him; and both hands were laid upon the tremulous white fingers pressed so tightly in his hair.

"Look, Scot, how I am waiting for your answer," she breathed. "I have never been obedient to you before, much as you have taught me; but I am waiting to obey you now

What a face it was that her gentle touch uncovered! I could hardly bear to look upon it in its wondering, bewildered joy; for it told so plainly of the anguish that had been lived through. Pennie's low cry burst in voluntarily from her shaking lips when she saw it.

"O, Scot, forgive me for it all!"

With the angry scarlet burning in his face Walter left the room. I have not seen him since. He writes to me occasionally—short, gay, selfish letters, but month after month he delays his coming home, and the house at Easter Hill remains without its master. For seven time Scot lived there alone, setting Walter's affairs for him, and still coming to me for our old morning studies; but Scot has won his home now. Yesterday he was chosen for the new head master of the Easterwood Grammar school, and it is the youngest headmaster who had been elected for a century, they say. To-night we are expecting him back from Cambridge, and Pennie is standing at the window watching for him, the evening sunshine lingering on her bright head, and another restful, happy sunshine in her eyes Earnestly do I know that the restive little pupil who used to give me so much pain has given him now a deeper and more gladdening love than mine

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas a convention between the United States of America and His Majesty the King of Denmark, relative to the naturalization of citizens and subjects of the two countries, was concluded and signed at Copenhagen by their respective plenipotentiaries on the twentieth day of July, 1872, the original of which convention, being in the English and Danish languages, is word for word as follows.

The United States of America and His Majesty the King of Denmark being desirous to regulate the citizenship of the citizens of the United States of America who have emigrated, or who may emigrate, from the United States of America to the Kingdom of Denmark, and, of Danish subjects who have emigrated or who may emigrate, from the Kingdom of Denmark to the United States of America, have resolved to conclude a convention for that purpose, and have named as their plenipotentiaries, that is to say, the President of the United States of America Michael J. Cramer, minister resident of the United States of America at Copenhagen, and His Majesty the King of Denmark; Otto Diderv Baron Rosenorn-Lehn, commander of Dannebrog and Danebrogsmand, chamberlain, His Majesty's minister for foreign affairs, &c., &c.

Who, after having communicated to each other their respective full powers found to be in good and due form, having agreed upon and concluded the following articles, to wit

ARTICLE I.

Citizens of the United States of America who have become or shall become, and are, naturalized according to law, within the Kingdom of Denmark as Danish subjects, shall be held by the United States of America to be in all respects and for all purposes Danish subjects, and shall be treated as such by the United States of America.

In like manner, Danish subjects who have become or shall become, and are naturalized, according to law, within the United States of America as citizens thereof, shall be held by the Kingdom of Denmark to be in all respects and for all purposes as citizens of the United States, and shall be treated as such by the Kingdom of Denmark.

ARTICLE II.

If any such citizen of the United States, so naturalized, naturalized within the Kingdom of Denmark as a Danish subject, shall renew his residence in the United States, the United States government may, on his application, and on such conditions as the government may impose, restore to him the character and privileges of a citizen of the United States, and the Danish government will not, in that case, claim him as a Danish subject on account of his former nationality.

ARTICLE III.

If, however, a citizen of the United States, naturalized in Denmark, shall renew his residence in the former country without the intent to return to that in which he was naturalized, he shall be held to have renounced his naturalization.

In like manner, if a Dane, naturalized in the United States, shall renew his residence in Denmark without the intent to return to the former country, he shall be held to have renounced his naturalization in the United States.

The intent not to return may be held to exist when the person naturalized in the one country shall reside more than two years in the other country.

ARTICLE IV.

The present convention shall go into effect immediately on either the exchange of the ratifications, and shall continue in force for ten years, and if twelve months after either of the contracting parties shall have given notice to the other of such intention.

ARTICLE V.

The present convention shall be ratified by the President of the United States of America, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate thereof, and by His Majesty the King of Denmark; and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Copenhagen as soon as may be, within eight months from the date hereof.

Dr. P. W. Benson, August 5, Maine

Two years ago last September I took sick with a cold which settled on my lungs. The cough I thought would wear away, but every month it seemed to increase in severity. I consulted my family physician who treated my condition, but while he gave me an prescribed Whiskey and tonics, I found that I took three quarters of the bill, and no benefit. I continued taking his medicine for months, when one of my children brought home a bottle of ADAMSON'S BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM. I took four bottles, and since I never have other remedies. I certainly grieving weaker, I sing my praise, and about getting up all hope. Any relief was marked by my family, and I about every person in the house, no one to die

But of a change took place. One day last winter a circular was thrown in my office, which advertised Adamson's Botanic Balsam, thank God. I read that circular very carefully, put on my spectacles, and carefully read and re-read it, and became fully convinced that it was just the medicine I required. I purchased a bottle of it, and commenced to use it according to directions. Before I had used half a bottle I noticed a change. I soon purchased a second bottle, and before I had finished the second bottle I had taken to be much relieved. I continued to use it, and before I had used the fourth bottle I was entirely cured, and could go to my business. I have not had a return of the disease since, and consider myself entirely cured by the use of Adamson's Balsam.

I have since recommended it to everybody who has asked me, and can truly say that I have not met with a single case of Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, Colds, or Sore Throat, but what was relieved by the use of Adamson's Balsam. I have not had a return of the disease since, and consider myself entirely cured by the use of Adamson's Balsam.
